An internet we trust: exploring reliability in the online world

The internet has an amazing range of information and opportunities online, but how do we separate fact from fiction?

For Safer Internet Day, the UK Safer Internet Centre are encouraging everyone to think about the reliability of information that we encounter online.

Reception

We will teach the children to:

- Identify devices they could use to access information online, including voice activated technology.
- Know the difference between true and false.
- Describe and demonstrate how to get help if they find content that makes them feel upset, confused or worried.
- Describe the people they can trust and share their personal information with; and who they should not share personal information with, and why.

Key Stage 1

We will teach the children to:

- Know that not all information online is a fact, and therefore might not be trustworthy.
- Identify ways to check that what they have found out online is fact/untrue/opinion.
- Describe and demonstrate how to get help if they find content that makes them feel upset, confused or worried.
- Describe the people they can trust and share their personal information with; and who they should not share personal information with, and why.
